COMPANY M ATTENDS CHURCH TO LISTEN TO PATRIOTIC TALK

Rev. James Elvin, of First Congregational Church,
Delivers Address

Washington's birthday services were observed by the members of Company M, O. G. C., by attending the First Congregational church in full dress uniform. Rev. James Elvin delivered a patriotic address, "Lexington and Concord" in which he extolled the virtues of the Father of His Country. Headed by the high school band, about 60 members of the company marched from the armory to the church where a section was set aside for them. The custom of the entire company attending church officially on special occasions was instituted last year and will probably become an established custom for the local militia.

Rev. Elvin's address is given in full: The birthday of Washington ought never be allowed to pass without some celebration in his honor. I was brought up in a city where every year Washington's birthday was observed with appropriate exercises. It has been well said of Washington that Providence left him childless that the nation might call him father. He is indeed the "Father of His Country." First in war, first in peace, first in the hearts of his fellow countrymen.

He was a great general. With an undisciplined force, he won our independence, in a war against a great nation of Europe. He was a great president. He led the thirteen divided colonies, into the unity of a nation. He was a great citizen. He left none and wealth, met every sacrifice loyally and bravely, accepted no pay for his services and thus he stands for our study and contemplation one of the most unselfish examples of self-denying patriotism the world has ever known.

We must not be allowed to forget that Washington was a man of faith and prayer. Like Lincoln, he too, again and again was driven to his knees when his own wisdom and the wisdom of those around him failed and he had nowhere else to go.

He too, like Lincoln, believed it to be a good thing to be on the side of the Lord. Not many years ago a statue of Washington was unveiled in Wall street in New York City and the great patriot is revealed in the attitude of prayer. Washington, because of his trust in God, believed that this country had a future full of hope and mighty purpose, needing only courage and faith to bring it to that greatness, for which God had destined this republic.

That faith in God sustained Washington in the dark hours of defeat when starvation threatened the little band of patriots. That faith sustained him, when envy and jealousy sought to defame him. That faith held him true, when ambition tempted him to sacrifice the public good for private gain. Faith in God and fidelity to the public good are the characteristics of Washington. In order that the future of this country be what God wills it to be these are the characteristics that must distinguish every true and loyal American.

It was my good fortune to live for a number of years in the section of our country known as New England a part of the country that even in our day is alive with reminders of the Revolutionary War and Washington. In the city of Boston the spot where the first blood was shed in "The Boston Massacre" is today sacredly remembered. Old cemeteries in the very heart of the business district containing the monuments of James Otis, Samuel Adams and John Hancock vividly remind one of those patriots of an early day. The British were so concerned at the minister of the Old South Church that they turned his church into a riding academy and used his books and sermons and addresses for fuel to warm themselves. The church is still an object of great interest to visitors. Samuel Adams and John Hancock were among the causes of the battle of Lexington and Concord for the British troops were on this way to arrest these leaders when Paul Revere in his famous ride alarmed the countryside and aroused the minutemen. Today Boston trolley cars follow the route of Paul Revere's historic ride.

It was in the month of May 1775 that the second Continental Congress met at Philadelphia and accepted the American Declaration of Independence. The great leader took command of the forces part army part mob—in Cambridge. July 3, 1775 under the old elm tree still standing and lovingly remembered as Washington's Elm. When I picked a handful of leaves from that sacred tree, and pressed them in my Bible, I felt that I was a better patriot than I had been before I saw the grand old tree. As I stood there seemingly so close to the days of Washington I remembered his unselfishness, his courage and his prudence. I remembered that he would not take one penny of pay for his services. For whatever services he rendered his country even when serving as

Says Indigestion Comes From An Excess of Hydrochloric Acid

A well-known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion is nearly always due to acidity—acid stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation, then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acid fluids and gases which inflate the chest, give us heartburn, flatulence, water-brash, or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast while it is effervescent, and furthermore, to continue this for one week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mucus, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

president he declined all pay.

It is only a few miles from Cambridge to Lexington and in this old town one is immediately introduced to Revolutionary days. The first thing one sees entering the town is the magnificent statue of Colonel Parker, who gallantly led the little band of Lexington patriots against the enemy. Not far away is a big rock on the village green and on the rock are carved the historic words of Parker, "If they are bound to have a fight, let it begin here." The old monument which marks the spot where the battle began the first monument to be erected to the memory of American soldiers is an object of great interest to the visitor. A large open Bible carved out of granite impressively reminds the patriots of today that those grand old patriots because they believed in the truths of the Bible believed in liberty and independence and were willing to suffer and die for their convictions.

"We ride on to Concord the 'Athens of America.' Beautiful landscapes, fine old dignified dwellings, carefully tended farms, greet one on all sides. The atmosphere of this entire section is so charged with the spirit of Washington and independence that one almost expects to see Paul Revere come flying along at any minute. Concord is a real American village alive with the very best American traditions. The home of Thoreau, Emerson, Hawthorne, The Alcotts, the birthplace of the famous Concord grape, the place where raw recruits won a great victory over trained British soldiers, the home of the famous Wright tavern and 'The Old Manse.' These are some of the things that make Concord famous the world over and tourists come to this little village from every corner of the earth.

The statue of the Minute-Man at Concord marks the spot where the battle was fought and on the base of the beautiful monument are carved the words of Emerson:

"By the rude bridge that arched the floor
Their flag to April's breeze unfurled,
Here the embattled farmers stood,
And fired the shot heard round the world."

Such places as Boston, Cambridge, Lexington and Concord are truly the shrines of American patriotism. The memory of the Revolutionary patriots, the memory of Washington, cannot easily be forgotten so long as such monuments exist. To generation after generation these historic places plead for a revival of patriotism, reminding Americans that patriotism means to serve one's country, to be willing in an emergency to die for one's country, but above all else to live for one's country. These shrines emphasize the lofty sentiment, "Your country and your God needs you." They teach in a wonderful way "Love of country and love of God." They remind us that faith in God and fidelity to the public good are the characteristics of the true patriot.

Salem High Basketball Team Has No Defeats For Season of 1916

The Salem high school basketball team has not met with a single defeat this year and in most of the games Coach Clancy's boys have won by decisive scores. So far Salem has won 10 games and suffered no defeats this season. Efforts are being made to play either Columbia university of Washington high school, of Portland, for the championship of the state.

The season's record follows: Roseburg high lost, 31 to 19; Eugene high lost, 26 to 20; Corvallis high, 65 to 11; McMinnville high, 40 to 7; Lincoln high, of Portland, 28 to 23; Salem high alumni, 24 to 25; Vancouver high, at Salem, 57 to 9.

Guy O. Smith, candidate for the Republican Nomination for District Attorney for Marion County.

BRIEF PERSONAL SKETCH

Guy O. Smith was born in Salem. On his mother's side he comes from a pioneer family she being the daughter of one of the best known of Polk county's pioneers, Selden Higgins, who took up a donation claim near Zena in 1851. He attended the public schools of old Polk, graduating from these and after this attending Willamette University five years graduated from the law department in 1910. He took a prominent part in college affairs, was president of the Websterian Literary society; manager of debates, representative of the inter-collegiate oratorical association, and served as president thereof.

On his graduation from the law school he opened offices here with Roy F. Shields his present partner, and for two years this firm was associated with John H. McNary under the firm name of McNary, Smith & Shields.

The firm has had a steadily growing general practice and Mr. Smith stands high in the estimation of the public the bar and the courts.

He has been an active republican for many years, being deeply interested in, and a keen student of city, county, state and national politics. He has never held office and never before asked for place on any ticket.

Mr. Smith has no platform other than to say that he will, if elected, attend strictly and energetically to the duties of the office without fear or favor and see that all matters pertaining to it are given careful, conscientious consideration; that all laws are vigorously enforced, all real offenders prosecuted but no one persecuted, and that the affairs of the office are managed efficiently and economically.

Texas, G. O. P. Emblem Takes Sunday Outing

Mill Brae, Cal., Feb. 21.—Mill Brae hadn't quite returned to its normal quietude today after the wildest Sabbath in its career.

It wasn't that Mill Brae wanted to be wild, but "Texas," an ancient circus elephant so decreed it.

Tiring of the humdrum existence of being a trick animal with a small circus, "Texas" went on a rampage, and among other things did the following stunts:

Shook up and badly scared Frank Adams, Jr., son of the circus proprietor.

Blocked trolley traffic by planting his frayed carcass in the middle of the track—adlib, refusing to be budged.

Chased Miss Frances Doubleday and her brother George. (Her father, D. G. Doubleday, a broker, made a brave rescue of the girl, while little George discreetly hid himself).

Calmly helped himself to vegetables in several gardens.

And then did a little "reverse English" by ambling peacefully back to circus headquarters, where he munched his usual bale of hay, was beaten up as punishment and locked in his car.

Inmate of Asylum Follows Strolling Pair to City Jail

Harry Wiedman, a blacksmith who resides on North Cottage street, was out walking with his wife yesterday afternoon when they chanced to stroll down Asylum avenue. An inmate of the asylum named Wysocky, who had been released from the asylum and started out to follow the pair, Mr. and Mrs. Wiedman walked faster and Wysocky followed faster, they took devious routes to shake their trailer but for two hours Wysocky refused to be shaken and always appeared just behind regardless of speed or change of direction.

Mr. Wiedman did not wish to let the man know where he resided and accordingly continued to stroll down Cottage street until he came to the city hall where he walked into the police station and Wysocky followed inside. When he found that he was to be detained he objected with all of his might but he was locked up until attendants from the asylum arrived and took him back to the institution.

WILLARD IS BETTER SEAT SALE IS OPENED

Much Interest Taken In Match—Golf Tournament and Other Sport News

Chicago, Feb. 21.—Jess Willard's cold has improved so much that he was able to resume light training today. He is doing practically all of his work indoors, however, and is not venturing forth much or taking chances with his cold.

Reports which were circulated here Sunday that the heavyweight champion had taken a sudden turn for the worse were ridiculed by Tom Jones, his manager.

Seat Sale Opens.

New York, Feb. 21.—The seat sale for the coming battle between Jess Willard and Frank Moran, for the heavyweight championship of the world is scheduled to open here this afternoon. Tex Rickard, promoter, declared his confidence that he would have a huge crowd, despite the necessity of postponing the match two weeks.

Lively interest is being shown in the bout in all parts of the country, he said.

The Golf Tournament.

Del Monte, Cal., Feb. 21.—Douglas Grant was the favorite in the betting when the second round of match play in the Del Monte midwinter golf tournament began here today. A large gallery of society folks followed him when he drove from the first tee in his match with A. H. Braley Grant, who is playing from scratch, was forced to concede Braley two holes, but his backers predicted that he would have little difficulty overcoming the handicap.

Jack Noville, generally picked to be Grant's opponent in the finals, met W. J. Byrne, whom he started five up.

Neville was not up to his usual form Sunday but was expected to win today.

The other pairings in the first flight were: H. Fleming against H. B. Knight and R. B. Patten against J. A. Sayward.

Aggies Disappointed.

Corvallis, Ore., Feb. 21.—Basketball fans in the Oregon Agricultural college were keenly disappointed today because the Aggies cannot remain in Berkeley one more day for a finish fight with the University of California quintet.

A tie for the championship of the Pacific coast was the result they predicted. Of course, the Aggies haven't beaten Washington State college in a championship bout, but they had already counted on unfurling the coast pennant at Corvallis, and the unsettled dispute at Berkeley was a disappointment.

Willamette University Will Retain Freshmen On Athletic Teams

Regardless of what the other non-conference colleges of the state do, Willamette university will compete in intercollegiate athletics next year, as it has in the past. At a meeting some time ago of the independent colleges at McMinnville it was advised that each college do away with intercollegiate athletics. The trustees of Willamette met last Tuesday and by a decisive vote upheld the competing of college against college in friendly athletic contests.

The freshman ruling recently adopted by the state schools, it is thought, may put a number of students to the university, as it is figured that first-year men may come here that they may be allowed to compete in athletic contests in their freshman year.

SILVERTON DEFEATS MONMOUTH HIGH

Silverton, Ore., Feb. 21.—In a fast and rough game of basketball here Saturday night the Silverton high school team defeated the Monmouth high school team, 25 to 19. The local boys had the visitors outclassed in swiftness and team work, despite the fact that the visitors were much heavier.

For forty years women suffering from feminine ills have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and have been getting well; and because they have got well, that great medicine continues to have a sale equalled by that of few proprietary preparations.
